Katie,

Like most everyone these days, I had to have something to look at to occupy my time as I waited on my order, on Saturday. Technological addiction is America's other greatest crises among many. I started looking at sports news on my phone as I sat alone at a bar at an establishment on Sand Mountain. The aggravating 'trending' notification tried to get my attention. You were trending and I immediately had the urge to delete and ignore as it's what I do when Alabama politicians are featured. Because usually the information is degrading. After about fifteenth seconds I scratched the itch and toggled your name and was shown pleasant news for once. Your MOMS Act is everything in which Heart of Dixie Obligation PAC stands. In a sinful spirit of pride, like many activist and politicians do, I could be disappointed that you may be helping to solve an issue that would keep my PAC in the limelight more if the issue we are working on, would go unsolved for another few years. Yet, the altruistic side of me, the side that got me into creating my PAC in the first place, applauds you for attempting your bill. It's easy for me to rebrand my vision and tackle another one of Alabama's issues. There are several more to be considered. Ones I know conservative office holders will run away from every time, ones their corporate donors use to threaten them.

I personally, believe new mothers and their accrued financial challenges are something you should've addressed last year. Being an election year, it's noble and reasonable for voters to think you are doing it now to boost the Republican's chances of regaining the White House. Yet, I choose to believe it is a prompting of the Holy Spirit as a conviction of what's right and wrong. I personally would have crafted a bill that allows those obtaining financial dilemmas by having to carry a pregnancy full term, to be able to file suit against individuals such as Leonard Leo and his donors out of Chicago. I've been taught that integrity requires, making those responsible for others problems, liable to clean up the mess they created. Besides those men can certainly afford it. I also believe medicaid is a much more sound route to take. Non profits may not be as supervised and still may not garner enough of the support to help every candidate in totality who asks. Totality is the key word here.

No matter how we arrived at this moment of taking responsibility as Christians for what we have done or are perceived to have done. It matters more concerning what we will do about it. Women everywhere deserve care and for that care to be paid for in totality for at least two years, when they decide or are forced to carry out a pregnancy. This is one action of yours I support out of many that I did not and may not in the coming months. Thank you for doing the altruistic and 'Christian' movement on the matter. I'd be remiss not to acknowledge your attempt as Founder of this lobby, even as we stand in opposition on other key issues.

Sincerely,

John Brown (Founder)
